Celebration of our Book

There was a festive atmosphere for our February meeting. The auditorium was filled with displays of mounted species at risk, the club display, and Ontario Nature's display. Clare Mitchell joined us from Ontario Nature. Angela Martin thanked the Species at Risk Committee and all the contributors.

Five contributors told us about the species that they wrote for our book. Fred Pinto and Melanie Alkins shared information of our involvement with species at risk, past, present and future. CTV taped interviews with Angela, Jeremy St Onge (a new director) and Clare Mitchell. The interviews were aired in the North Bay and Sudbury areas, as well as Canada AM. Luanne Chowns and Grace Price made us special treats for the occasion and the Species at Risk Committee signed books.

SPECIES at RISK in the LAKE NIPISSING WATERSHED Project

This project has been such a huge success, and we proudly share some of the comments that have been emailed to the authors:

Thanks again for the opportunity to participate in the book launch on Tuesday evening. It was a fun event. You, Fred, and everyone else have done a really marvellous job on the SAR field guide. It is truly something to be proud of! ~-BN

The colour, the photos, the COVER, the quality - all amazing. I love the full length spiral rings; so sturdy and easy to flip to hold in one hand. ~-BK

The evening went well last night! I'm glad that we made the trip to North Bay to make the opening of this very interesting and important issue. My mom would like for me to extend her appreciation for the booklet that she, Pam and myself received on behalf of the Nipissing Naturalist Club. ~-MD

Congratulations to all involved in producing and launching the Species at Risk book. I just got back from a conference in the U.S. and there was a copy waiting for me — thank-you. It looks great. ~-CS

Got the SAR book in Friday's mail. It looks GREAT. The picture quality/production is excellent and the accounts read were interesting. ~-SM

It is a bonus to have a book that is not only informative but attractive too. ~-FM

Thank you for providing an update of the meetings and we did receive the six books in the mail recently. They look fantastic. ~-PJ, Species at Risk Unit MNR
